

Persuasion Text Homework

While many people think that children should not have homework after school, I think that they should.

My first reason is that school is an extremely busy environment and generally concentration can best be achieved in the quiet environment of the child's own home.

My second reason is that homework provides the valuable opportunity for children to practice their skills at home where parents can monitor and supervise progress.

Furthermore, I think that the school curriculum, while providing a range of opportunities for learning, does not have enough time to reinforce basic skills. Children rely on the extra opportunities provided by homework in order to make progress in the basic skills of reading, writing and mathematics.

In addition, children at home, with too much time on their hands are inclined to turn to irresponsible activities for amusement. Such children are regularly seen causing chaos on our streets at night. .

Finally, I think that TV is creating a society of people who are unable to plan their own time. Homework is one way of forcing children away from the television screens and creates an opportunity for some real thinking.

While I do acknowledge that children have a lot of thinking to do at school, I hope I have shown, that there is a responsibility to continue this process at home too.
